MALAYSIA - ECONOMIC OVERVIEW

Malaysia, an upper middle-income country, has transformed itself since the 1970s from a producer of raw materials into a multi-sector economy. Under current Prime Minister NAJIB, Malaysia is attempting to achieve high-income status by 2020 and to move further up the value-added production chain by attracting investments in high technology, knowledge-based industries and services. NAJIB's Economic Transformation Program is a series of projects and policy measures intended to accelerate the country's economic growth. The government has also taken steps to liberalize some services sub-sectors. Malaysia is vulnerable to a fall in world commodity prices or a general slowdown in global economic activity.

The NAJIB administration is continuing efforts to boost domestic demand and reduce the economy's dependence on exports. Domestic demand continues to anchor economic growth, supported mainly by private consumption, which accounts for 53% of GDP. Nevertheless, exports - particularly of electronics, oil and gas, and palm oil - remain a significant driver of the economy. In 2015, gross exports of goods and services were equivalent to 73% of GDP. The oil and gas sector supplied about 22% of government revenue in 2015, down significantly from prior years amid a decline in commodity prices and diversification of government revenues. Malaysia has embarked on a fiscal reform program aimed at achieving a balanced budget by 2020, including rationalization of subsidies and the 2015 introduction of a 6% value added tax. Sustained low commodity prices throughout the period not only strained government finances, but also shrunk Malaysia's current account surplus and weighed heavily on the Malaysian ringgit, which was among the region's worst performing currencies during 2013-17. The ringgit hit new lows following the US presidential election amid a broader selloff of emerging market assets.

Bank Negara Malaysia (the central bank) maintains adequate foreign exchange reserves; a well-developed regulatory regime has limited Malaysia's exposure to riskier financial instruments, although it remains vulnerable to volatile global capital flows. In order to increase Malaysia's competitiveness, Prime Minister NAJIB raised possible revisions to the special economic and social preferences accorded to ethnic Malays under the New Economic Policy of 1970, but retreated in 2013 after he encountered significant opposition from Malay nationalists and other vested interests. In September 2013 NAJIB launched the new Bumiputra Economic Empowerment Program, policies that favor and advance the economic condition of ethnic Malays.

Malaysia signed the 12-nation Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) free trade agreement in February 2016, although the future of the TPP remains unclear following the US withdrawal from the agreement. Along with nine other ASEAN members, Malaysia established the ASEAN Economic Community in 2015, which aims to advance regional economic integration.

INDUSTRY : ECONOMY

The Malaysian economy will remain resilient in 2018, with real GDP expanding between 5% and 5.5%, led by domestic demand. Private sector expenditure continues to be the primary driver of growth with private investment and consumption growing 8.9% and 6.8%, respectively. Meanwhile, public sector expenditure is forecast to decline, in line with lower capital outlays by public corporations. On the supply side, growth is expected to be broadbased, with all sectors registering positive growth. Malaysia's external position is forecast to remain favourable supported by global growth and trade. Against this backdrop, the nominal GNI per capita is expected to increase 5.1% from RM40,713 in 2017 to RM42,777 in 2018.

With investment growing at a faster pace, the savings-investment gap will narrow to 2.3% of GNI. The economy will continue to operate under conditions of full employment with an unemployment rate of below 4%, while inflation remains benign. In line with fiscal consolidation efforts, the fiscal deficit will further decline to 2.8% of GDP in 2018 (2017: 3%). Accordingly, the Federal Government debt remains sustainable within the prudent limit of 55% of GDP. These developments will further strengthen the nation's economic fundamentals and resilience to further propel the country towards the milestones of an advanced and high-income nation by 2020, doubling the size of the economy to RM2 trillion in 2025 and joining the ranks of top 20 countries by 2050.

Malaysia's economy recorded robust growth of 5.6% in the first quarter of 2017 (1Q17) against the 4.1% registered in the same quarter of 2016, boosted by strong domestic demand and private expenditure. According to Bank Negara Malaysia (BNM), growth for the just ended quarter was the best since the corresponding quarter of 2015, which saw gross domestic product (GDP) at 5.8%.

During the 1Q17, domestic demand increased to 7.7% supported by continued expansion in private sector expenditure, which grew by 8.2% and the turnaround in public sector expenditure. Private consumption rose 6.6%, while investments grew sharply by 12.9% following continued capital spending in the services and manufacturing sectors. Investments in machinery and equipment were higher during the quarter, supported by the implementation of several large-scale projects in the manufacturing sector.

Public consumption recorded a 7.5% growth in 1Q17 due to higher spending on both emoluments as well as supplies and services, while investments improved 3.2%, driven mainly by higher spending on fixed assets by public corporations. Meanwhile, headline inflation rose by 4.3% due to higher fuel oil prices with RON95 petrol averaging RM2.23 per litre compared to RM1.73 in the same quarter of 2016. The first quarter GDP performance those anticipate inflation to range between 3%-4% for 2017.

The household debt had reduced to 88.4% during the said quarter from 89% at end-2016 on the back of stable labour market conditions and adequate financial buffers. Demand for home financing remained a key contributor to the debt level during the reviewed quarter, adding, outstanding housing loans expanded 8.5% annually. The overall housing loans approval rate remained high at 74.2% with banks approving RM22.3 billion to 90,137
