CANADA - ECONOMIC OVERVIEW

Canada resembles the US in its market-oriented economic system, pattern of production, and high living standards. Since World War II, the impressive growth of the manufacturing, mining, and service sectors has transformed the nation from a largely rural economy into one primarily industrial and urban. Canada has a large oil and natural gas sector with the majority of crude oil production derived from oil sands in the western provinces, especially Alberta. Canada now ranks third in the world in proved oil reserves behind Venezuela and Saudi Arabia and is the world's seventh-largest oil producer.

The 1989 Canada-US Free Trade Agreement and the 1994 North American Free Trade Agreement (which includes Mexico) dramatically increased trade and economic integration between the US and Canada. Canada and the US enjoy the world's most comprehensive bilateral trade and investment relationship, with goods and services trade totaling more than $680 billion in 2017, and two-way investment stocks of more than $800 billion. Over three-fourths of Canada's merchandise exports are destined for the US each year. Canada is the largest foreign supplier of energy to the US, including oil, natural gas, and electric power, and a top source of US uranium imports.

Given its abundant natural resources, highly skilled labor force, and modern capital stock, Canada enjoyed solid economic growth from 1993 through 2007. The global economic crisis of 2007-08 moved the Canadian economy into sharp recession by late 2008, and Ottawa posted its first fiscal deficit in 2009 after 12 years of surplus. Canada's major banks emerged from the financial crisis of 2008-09 among the strongest in the world, owing to the financial sector's tradition of conservative lending practices and strong capitalization. Canada's economy posted strong growth in 2017 at 3%, but most analysts are projecting Canada's economic growth will drop back closer to 2% in 2018.

Waste management company leaving recycling uncollected all over Montreal

July 10, 2018

While Côte-des-Neiges—Notre-Dame-de-Grâce works to dig itself out from under piles of uncollected recyclables, a CBC investigation has revealed that trash and compost have been piling up across other parts of the city for weeks at a time for more than a year.

Several Montreal officials are now pointing a finger at Ricova Inc., which has the contract to collect household waste and compost with many of Montreal's 19 boroughs.

"Since April 2017, we have had 1,363 complaints," said Normand Marinacci, the mayor of Île-Bizard—Sainte-Geneviève — and that's only based on calls made to 311. It doesn't count the many calls he and borough councillors receive directly from citizens.

On collection days, he said, Ricova routinely fails to pick up recycling in 50 per cent of his borough, sometimes skipping routes two weeks in a row. As a result, residents are forced to accumulate and store trash on their property.
